

MAKING MEANING TOGETHER

REFLECTIONS FROM THE “UNEQUAL” JOURNALISM GROUP

ESTELLE GERBER
KATIE MARSHALL
MEGAN SUKA

APRIL 24, 2025

OVERVIEW

Our group served as the journalistic team for the course.

We observed and documented the processes of the main group assignments: brewing ancient Mesopotamian beer recipes, curating a museum exhibition, and analyzing trace residue samples from modern recreations of ancient ceramic beer vessels.

Our final product was a custom-coded website that housed stories, reflections, and documentation of these projects.

This required deep interdisciplinary research, collaborative writing, and technical development from scratch.

PROCESS IN MOTION

- Navigating intentional ambiguity in the course structure
- Participating and documenting at the same time
- Finding meaning in friction, improvisation, and collaboration

THE ARCHITECTURE OF STORY

- Balancing breadth and depth across disciplines
- Making disconnected ideas feel coherent
- Finding rhythm in teamwork and writing

HAND-SPUN INFRASTRUCTURE

- Coding in JavaScript + TailwindCSS, hosted on Vercel
- No templates—just vision, trust, and trial-and-error
- Technical problem-solving as a creative act

WITH GRATITUDE

We wanted to thank Michaela Herrmann, whose mentorship and instruction
enlivened our words and brought meaning to the madness of the collection of all this incredible data!